

Double Pass Thru Method

By Glenn Wilson

To be able to use any method of sight resolution, you must already have developed the ability to move the dancers through the different formations and arrangements and be able to match up particular dancers when necessary. For the purposes of this explanation, we will assume you already have these skills.

Also remember that a correct resolution is only a small (but important) part of what callers do. 95% of the time we should be calling interesting, well-timed choreography with good body flow. Then we should decide to resolve the set.

Any resolution method when over-used will become predictable, and so I recommend that all callers work to develop variety, not only in their dancing choreography but also in their resolutions.

All the set-ups used in this explanation are a DPT Thru formation with No.1 couple and No. 3 couple in their home positions. This is only for ease of explanation and also for return to home get-out resolution. The DPT formation can be in any other orientation, but would require a Promenade to get the couples home. You are also welcome (and are encouraged) to use a DPT formation with the Side couples in their home positions, it doesn't change the method at all.
